SHARKEY IS WORLD'S CHAMPION

NEW YORK, N.Y., Tommy Loughran is still alive—and likely to remain that for some years to come.

Boxing fans were startled by rumors that the Philadelphia boxer, who was knocked out by Jack Sharkey in the third round of their bout at Yankee stadium, was ill, dying or dead.

"My God, no, no, no!" Smith shouted. "Tommy's resting right here with me and as far as a headache, he's feeling fine."

So Loughran is still alive, but his career as a heavyweight title contender seems checked before it had fairly started.

The right hand smash to the face with which Sharkey dropped Loughran dropped the Philadelphia out of the picture and made Sharkey the foremost American heavyweight.

The Boston goal is to return to Miami, Fla., next winter, probably the most Max Schmeling, of Germany.

Loughran can retire and live on a fortune estimated at $20,000 gained in the ring, or he can continue fighting in the heavyweight ranks as a neck-and-neck man.

The boxing world, which doubted the ability of Sharkey, now acclaim him in glowing terms.

"The champion of America" and "the champion in fact of not in name of the world" were the titles of honor tossed in his path by fans who admire a fighter who can hit.

By proving his ability to slug with his right hand, Sharkey eliminated one of the factors that had caused boxing fans to doubt his worth.

In the past Sharkey was admittedly a boxer of parts with a fair punch, but it was not until this fight that the world accepted him, unreservedly, as a potent championship possibility.

The heavyweight made one sounder solution than at any time last year. Max Schmeling seems to be the only man in position to challenge Jack's supremacy, and if they fight at Miami next winter it is likely that the winner will be recognized as a world champion.

Padino, Christopher, Loughran, Strible, Campolo, Hansen are out of the picture.

Paul Scott remains but his challenge is so slight as to be almost inaudible. There are few who believe he could stay 10 or 15 rounds with the Sharkey that defeated Loughran so easily.

SASKATONATHAN, Sask.—Two members of the former Saskatoon Hawks, champions of the Prairie Hockey league for the 1927-28 season, Earl Miller and Tommy Westwick, have received official notification to report for training with the Chicago Black Hawks.

They were to be in South Bend, Indiana, on Monday, October 14, where Knut Rockne, famous coach of the Notre Dame University football club, will put them through physical drill for two weeks before they actually don the steel blades.

Miller was a regular with the Hawks during the past two seasons, while Westwick was one of the Hawks sold to the Black Hawks at the close of the 1928 season. Tommy was named out to the Prince train, in the California league, last winter, but was advised by Billy Tobin, business manager of the Hawks, when he was in Saskatoon a few weeks ago, that he would be recalled.

GIVE SERIOUS CONSIDERATION TO FIRE BYLAW

Last week the Standard referred to the proposed Fire Bylaw which will be submitted to the municipality for consideration or rejection on October 20th.

At the Council meeting on Tuesday last, an information talk the facts were presented that a very considerable portion of the Town is absolutely without ample fire protection.

For example, the beautiful Memorial Hall, the Masonic Temple, Hotel Wallace, St. Michael's and St. Angela Church, the homes of Mayor Shrimpton, G. H. Patrick, C. A. Loy and A. B. Helling. This condition no doubt also applies to the Sacred Heart Church and the residents on Third Street, also at Fifth and Sixth Streets where Joe French and J. VanTighem reside.

The only possible protection would be through the securing of loans from the C.P.L.D. and it was pointed out that upon many occasions the whole C.P.L.D. staff are absent upon their work outside the town.

There are many other arguments that are available and the Standard is convinced that the best interests of all will be protected by supporting of the Law.

The fact that Strathmore has been compensated by free for some time out of the various contributions is no argument that today tonight or tomorrow that another Walworth disaster might not occur here.

The cost to each ratepayer is assuredly small and as the Standard stated last week "Better be safe than sorry."

INTERESTING VIEW OF CATTLE AND BEEF EXPORTS

An interesting view of Canadian cattle and beef imports into the United States for the next year has been published by the U.S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. It does not specifically mention any change in the tariff on cattle or beef.

The Bureau believes that imports of cattle and beef generally will exceed levels of the past two years though they "will still represent only a small proportion of the total beef production of the United States."

The 1928-29 imports were equivalent to 41 per cent. of the total federally inspected slaughter of cattle and calves in the United States during that year. Almost 60 per cent. of these cattle from Mexico and very largely steers, imports from that country were considerably larger than in 1927-28. In the imports from Canada during 1928-29, slaughter this year, cattle almost equaled beef cattle in numbers. Dressed and short crops in Canada were in heavier shipments of feeder stock in the next few months.

"Imports for 1928-29 were equivalent to only about 1.3 per cent. of the total beef and veal produced from federally inspected slaughter in the United States during that period. Imports of fresh beef and veal from New Zealand showed a substantial increase in 1928-29 and constituted over half of our total imports. Imports from Canada decreased.

"In addition to the imports of live animals and dressed meat there were imported into the United States during the 12 months ended June 30th 1929, approximately 55,737,000 pounds of canned beef, compared with 39,222,000 during the previous year.

"A significant change in production in the principal beef exporting countries next year is expected. Although no definite information is available as to present cattle numbers in Canada and New Zealand, slaughter in both countries for the first half of 1929 was considerably less than during the corresponding period in 1928. New Zealand has exported less beef than for this year than in 1928, but the decrease appeared in shipments to the United Kingdom, since exports to the United States were larger.

"Cattle numbers in northern Mexico appear to be increasing, but in South America definite reductions in numbers are apparent, with current beef production considerably below last year. Beef imports into the United States from South America are limited to canned and cured production. However, exports of chilled and frozen beef from South America are diverting it to the United States.

"Although shipments of beef from export countries have been declining in the last two years and show no signs of an immediate increase, there are indications that a factor in this situation. This may tend to increase the total beef to the 'United States'."

In the market news service of the United States Department of Agriculture, according to the weekly end of August, there was a forecast of the probable cattle situation in the United States for the next few months. The forecast is that the supply of cattle available for slaughter during the next 12 months are expected to be about the same as last year. While marketing of cattle this fall will differ little from those of the fall of 1928, the marketing of cattle may be later. Early wintering may be later. Early wintering may be later. Early wintering may be later.

"Imports of cattle and beef although increasing, are not expected to amount to more than a small proportion of our domestic production. The statement continues: "Demand for steers and feeder cattle, however, is not likely to equal the unusually strong demand prevailing in the summer of 1928. The seasonal trends in cattle prices are expected to be more nearly normal than those of the fall and winter of 1928-29. Stock prices for fall cattle probably will be lower than in the season this year, but while prices of other cattle probably will follow the seasonal trend, the increase in cattle numbers which now is under way is expected to be moderate."

"Cattle slaughter in 1929 will probably be but little different from the total in 1928, but calf slaughter will be somewhat smaller. However, if feed conditions in some of the Western states prove heavy marketing, and other sections do not take these cattle, total slaughter for this year may be equal to that of last year. The estimated number of cattle and calves on farms changed but little during 1928, births and importations about offsetting slaughter and death losses. With total slaughter this year somewhat less, and importations about as large, some increase in numbers may result.

"The increase in cattle numbers seems to be taking place in the principal cattle states of the Corn Belt area. Records of movements into that area show that shipments to the market for 12 months ending June, 1929, were 100,000 head larger than for the preceding 12 months, and that marketing from that area for the 9 months October, 1928, to June, 1929, decreased 850,000 head from the same period a year earlier. Undoubtedly the possibilities for expansion are larger in the States of this area than elsewhere. Unless there is a reduction in sheep numbers in the Western States the possibilities of expansion of cattle numbers there are limited. This situation also applies to a large area in Texas. Present indications are that the increase in cattle numbers during the next 6 years will be much less rapid than that which occurred from 1912 to 1918, when production was stimulated by war conditions, and numbers increased from 45,000,000 to seventy-one million head.

"Although some decline from the present high levels of cattle numbers is to be expected within the next three years, there seems little possibility that this decline will carry prices to the low levels prevailing from 1921 to 1926."

The Wheat Situation Is Very Interesting

to be considered; competition from low-priced countries balanced against this season's Canadian short crop with the general view prevailing in Canada that, as we have a smaller crop than usual, we should get a larger price for it. This, of course, brings the question of wheat prices very conspicuously into the foreground of the present situation.

In his statement recently published in the Post Press, Mr. E. B. Ramsay, vice president of the Canadian Wheat Board, central selling agency, points out that if the Canadian crop were sold at present price levels, having regard to the grade of the crop, this only promises a gross farm income of $288,000,000, or an approximate reduction in the buying power of the West of $170,000,000. "The value of last year's crop," Mr. Ramsay calculates, "of which 46,000,000 bushels were inspected, was very close to $470,000,000." Present price quotations showed cash wheat at Winnipeg on October 1 selling at $1.15, consequently, if Canada's crop this year, on account of its quality and scarcity, is to bring the financial return anywhere near the $170,000,000 of last year, the price now prevailing will have to go considerably higher. Every further drop involves a further reduction of the purchasing power of the West. Mr. Ramsay estimates the reduction at $170,000,000, when wheat is selling around $1.40 a bushel.

This, then, is why the Canadian elevators are full of wheat; this is why export of Canadian wheat is difficult, and this is why the presidents of the Canadian railways point out to all whom it concerns that the tie-up in wheat transportation will seriously affect the earnings of the railway and steamship companies who carry the wheat. If the price is broken down to levels that suit the foreign buyers, "quantities of Canadian wheat could no doubt be sold to Europe at the present time." The plug could be pulled out and the wheat could flow—but at a heavy cost to Canada. Obviously the problem confronting all the grain interests is to meet the competition of the world wheat market, and at the same time get full value on quality for the crop; failing this, the situation becomes extremely serious.

Since July Canadian wheat has been consistently and heavily undersold by the Argentine, where the conditions in which wheat is grown and marketed are very different from those in Canada. Whatever the economic effect has been this summer in Argentina, the fact is that Argentine wheat is being sold at prices in Liverpool which would be disastrous to Canadian producers, and the possibility has to be faced that so long as the Argentine puts wheat on the market in sufficient bulk, the Canadian sellers of wheat have the choice between a policy of patient and watchful waiting, or releasing their stocks at prices unacceptably low.

It is the policy of watchful waiting that the grain interests in Canada have adopted. They are holding the wheat; they are waiting till foreign stocks drop to levels that make it necessary for European importers to pay prices for Canadian wheat which represent a satisfactory return to the producers. The strain of holding the accumulated stocks in storage may be considerable, and the inconvenience and loss in freight may be considerable, too, but the consequences of a sudden break in the price would be even more perturbing as it would affect the financial welfare of the whole country. The season when Canadian wheat is in great demand abroad is said to be only a week or two away, and there is an evident determination among the wheat interests to take the fullest advantage of the extensive resources now existing in Canada to hold the wheat against a short-crop year.

NO other six-cylinder car has ever earned, in any year, one-third the public acceptance, one-third the volume of sales, which have been bestowed upon Chevrolet Six during the nine months since its introduction.

This tremendous public acceptance is due to three outstanding facts. To the fact that Chevrolet offered, for the first time in history, a six at the price of a four. ROCKYFORD OBITUARY

FREDERICK WALLIS GIBSON

In '84 the Stork visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Gibson in Morden, Manitoba. About the year 1902 the late Frederick W. Gibson, born, journeyed to near Olds, Alta. and rode for F. Burns and Co. In 1910 he opened a Veterinary Stable in the town of Tricoma, Alta. Here he met Miss Kathryn McVicar, who in 1912 they were married. Three children came to their home but the little girl was left behind in a plot of God's Acre when they came to the town of Rockyford in the spring of 1918. That winter Mr. Gibson operated a garage in the town of Tricoma. On coming to Rockyford he immediately opened a garage business, later became the Ford Tractor dealer but in 1924 accepted the Chevrolet Agency which he held at the time of his death.

Just this year he erected a saw garage equipped with most up to date tools.

Mr. Gibson has always been a good citizen in the larger meaning of that word. He has served on the Village Council and the local school Board. During the many days of baseball he was manager of the team and when Carl's season last winter he was among the first to sign up.

This spring and summer he was especially interested in the Junior baseball boys and spared neither time nor money in their interests.

The Oldfathers and Macons held last membership, and of the latter order he was Treasurer. Last Easter he and the other members of the family united with the church in Rockyford. On Wednesday, October 2nd he was taken ill but was not considered serious, till Saturday, 10 Monday he was removed to the Holy Cross Hospital, Calgary, and at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday he died.

He passed thru the stages of Jaundice, Muscular Rheumatism and Kidney Disease, but strove to overcome the latter form.

The funeral service took place in the United Church, Rockyford, at 2 p.m. Over a hundred floral gifts decorated casket and choir solo. A good half of the people were able to get into the building and over a hundred participated in the service.

The firm of Foster and Foster, who were the Directors and 11 local residents, Rev. M. Gilbert assisted by Rev. C. Heston and Mr. C. H. W. Ford, W. M. conducted the service.

Mr. Gibson is survived by his wife and two boys, Walter and Bert. About two years ago his mother passed away and his father has been living with his sister Mrs. L. May of Seattle, Wash. Another sister Mrs. Joslin resides at Whitecourt, Mont. There are three brothers, William of Hartman, Man. Allister of Montreal, Que. and Valde of Bowman, Mont.

Mr. Gibson has left a large vacancy in our community life and he has also left a rare memory which all who ever knew him will cherish.
